On the heels of his inclusion in “The New Bend,” a standout Hauser & Wirth exhibition curated by Legacy Russell about recent critical textile practices, Anthony Olubunmi Akinobla presents a new large work with his Dubai gallery. The Nigerian American artist is best known for his canvases comprising durags stretched into striking abstractions. The durags are recognizable in some works, while in others, they’re a little harder to identify. In the work at the fair, Akinbola’s durags are droopy and colorful.
